celebrates

This year, Winnie the wombat ~~celebrate~~ her 31st birthday, making her the oldest wombat in australia, and properly the world. "Common wombats generally live in captivity for about 25 years, so it is actually quiet rare and unusual to have a wombat survive over the age of 30," said Daniel Smith from the National Zoo. Winnie were orphaned as a baby and raised at the zoo. Visitors often find her digging burrows and playing with alot of toys. Winnie is difficult to spot in her enclosure, but you can see her moving around in the bushes when you walk passed and you now that she is in there.

Winnie is a bit of a celebrity, with her own Facebook page and more then one thousand followers. Her keeper's share photos of her and post humorous updates every day.

The wombat's favourite foods are grated carrot and sweet potato, and perhaps her healthy diet and active lifestyle have contributed to her age. According to Daniel Smith, she is much loved at the zoo. "She has definite been able to live a very long and happy life here."
